

The Session Pipe

It is a scottish bagpipe made by Nigel Richard (Edinburgh).

Similar to the Border pipe, but this time the bag will be inflated with mouth (mouthblown) instead of bellows. The loudness, the sound itself and a chromatic chanter are in fact close to those of the Border pipe.

The general look, the position of the drones (one bass and two tenors) on the shoulder and their loudness remind us of the Great Highland Bagpipe.

The bagpipe is tuned in A (chanter and all drones) and made of mopane and boxwood.

Its reduced sound level allows it to play with many instruments like the fiddle, the whistle or the guitar in folk bands.
